Rootbeer Repo Analysis
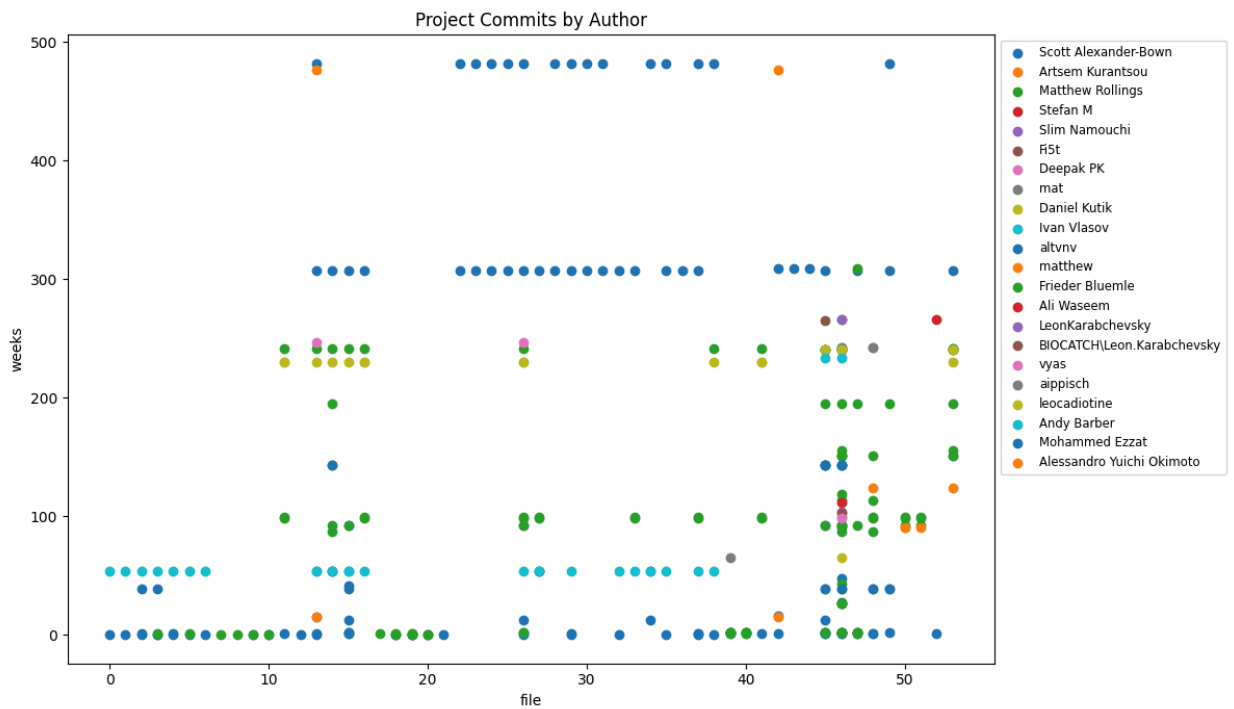

This report analyzes the source code of the Rootbeer project over a 480-week period.

Based on the scatter plot, Scott Alexander-Bown is the primary contributor, as his touches appear consistently across almost all files and throughout the entire project timeline from start to finish.

Other significant contributors include Matthew Rollings and Frieder Bluemle, who show high activity across several files in the later weeks of the project. Developers such as Ivan Vlasov likely left the project years ago, as their contributions are only seen within the first 50 weeks with no activity since. For future tasks, Scott Alexander-Bown is the best choice for major changes due to his total project knowledge, while Matthew Rollings is well-suited for recent updates given his consistent activity in the top half of the graph.
